The function of the Subversives Department was to produce intelligence on that topic, including the collection of information on subversive organizations, their members, plans, activities, plus analysis and neutralization of their activities, and the proposing (but not implementing) of psychological warfare activities directed against such organizations. It did not include executive action (arrests and interrogations) against target organizations or individuals. During the early and mid-1970s, the Subversives Department focused principally on the Montoneros. It was believed to be staffed by about 10 officers and an unknown number of enlisted personnel and civilians.
